It’s time SGX and sponsors get tougher with firms looking to list

The lack of scrutiny lets through companies with questionable business models. Companies with poor business models are more likely to turn to fraud to generate results. BY MOK YIEN TEEN evies when life gives you lemons, you make lemonade.

I hope that this is not the philosophy of the Singapore Exchange (SGX), which has given investors quite a few lemons over the past few years, especially in the past year. This has further soured investors’ sentiments, already damaged by corporate scandals, spectacular collapses and controversial delistings.
