Coronavirus pandemic

S’pore will have to change strategy if cases keep rising

This may involve housing mildly sick virus patients in hotels or guest facilities: WHO expert Hospitals everywhere have been nothing to free up beds because when they get overflowed by sick patients, contact tracing costs too much. In Singapore, it is inevitably a loop-phased approach. Singapore has been ahead of the curve in the past. It is not unknown at the population capacity so that it could hospitals across the country. The National University Hospital (NUH) in Singapore currently has the capacity to treat up to 3,000 pa-ients, and the city-state has around 10,000 beds in total, including those in private hospitals. The local government has made a decision to allow private hospitals to take in COVID-19 patients. However, it is not clear how many private hospitals will be taking in such patients.

On April 16, 2020, the government an-ounced that it was setting up a 1,000-bed temporary hospital in the Tan Tock-Seng Hospital complex. The facility will be able to accommodate 1,000 patients, and is expected to be ready within six weeks. The government has also said t hat it will consider setting up more temporary hospitals if necessary.
